ALLIES MIX NEW BAIT TO GET U. S. IN EUROPE'S WEB

Premiers Try for a "United Front."

By PAUL WILLIAMS.
(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)
LONDON, March 2.—(Tribune Radio).—Another appeal to the United States for assistance will be made later in the year by France and England if these two nations can come to work in double harness.
This is one of the objectives of Prime Minister MacDonald in his overtures to Premier Poincare for a better understanding. It is revealed in the latest exchange of confidential communications between the two premiers, who, as a result of them, are likely to hold a preliminary conference in the near future, perhaps next week.
As Mr. MacDonald puts it, "If France and England can but agree on cooperation, the other European countries will be assured, and it will be possible for us to approach America as debtors seeking aid and not as mutual sacrifice and arrangement to cure the ills from which our people are now suffering."
Link Debts with Reparations.
This "approach" will be made in connection with interrelated debts, a problem which both premiers agree is inseparable from that of reparations.
Mr. MacDonald makes reference to an agreement of Woodrow Wilson with David Lloyd George to come to the aid of France in case of attack by Germany.
"With the abolition of America, this offer lapses," he says, "and the French people have with some justification been seeking other and more tangible safeguards to take its place."
And in reply Premier Poincare states that France "simply counted on the signatures being honored." Whether this means the signature of Mr. Wilson or the Germans or both is left to conjecture.
Tells of British Suspensions.
Mr. MacDonald's letter, dated Feb. 12, is reminiscent of some state papers written by the late Mr. Wilson. He frankly states that a considerable body of British opinion believes France is trying to get what it called to get during the peace negotiations, and that these efforts will be futile and may result in another war. The same opinion is expressed by the French press. The French press is convinced that France is determined to rule Germany and dominate the continent without consideration of the British interests. He says the economic existence of Great Britain is gravely endangered by the disposition of the markets and is due to the uncertainty of the relations between France and Germany.
Great Britain is also disturbed by the interest of France in the military expansion of new states in central Europe, and the question of the French domination of these activities. "In disregard of the fact that the British taxpayer must find upward of £20,000,000 ($125,000,000) for the cost of the armaments in America and that our taxpayers have also to find large sums to pay the interest on the debt of France, we are not yet either made, so far as they can see, any sacrifices equivalent to their own."

IDENTIFY ONE OF DUFFY DEATH CAR OCCUPANTS

Wholesale robberies were charged yesterday against the prisoners held in connection with the Maybelle Exley John Duffy murder. For a time there was a cessation of the attempts to get an answer to the question, "Who killed John Duffy?" but after Orlando Horton, William Engelke, and Carl Hein had been confronted and accused by victims of diamond robberies Acting Chief of Detectives William Shoemaker resumed the murder investigation.
He admitted knowing the name of one man who sat with Duffy in the automobile in which it is believed the booze runner, man killer, and wife killer from Philadelphia was himself killed, and from which his body was tossed near Argo. He requested that this name be not published.
Fears for Girl's Safety.
"But it's going to be one large man sized job to convict any of this gang," he explained. "We'll have to find out more than the fact that certain persons were in the death car. However, we have a fine gang of thieves in the basement."
The acting detective chief then expressed fear for the safety of Jean Mason, sometimes called Marie, the divorcee who voluntarily gave the first information toward clearing the murders. After she had implicated Engelke she disappeared. From what Engelke said concerning her last night, Capt. Shoemaker voiced the belief that the murderers, whose regular occupation is booze selling and whose side line is robbery, would stop at nothing to prevent her from telling more.
Jean Key to Entire Case?
Jean was a sweetheart of Duffy, Engelke said, and after Duffy had killed the woman known as Mrs. Duffy, he tried to get in communication with Jean. Engelke said that at Duffy's direction he had called for Jean several times to arrange a meeting with Duffy, but had failed.
Capt. Shoemaker has a theory Jean might be able to involve Julian Kaufman, the young commission merchant and millionaire's son, as well as others not only in the Duffy killing, but in the holdups. Engelke last night denied dealings with Kaufman, even after he had been identified as the highway man who stole a diamond ring later found in the possession of Kaufman's wife.
Kaufman Hearing Today.
As Kaufman will have a preliminary hearing this morning in the Dee Plaster street court, the acting detective chief was anxious to get quickly as much evidence as possible. Assistant State's Attorney Harold Levy said he would seek to have Kaufman's bond canceled, as the charge is murder and there is now sufficient proof, in his opinion, to justify an indictment.
Engelke said Duffy's purpose in asking Kaufman to meet him on the night of Feb. 21, was to get Kaufman's aid in disposing of the body of Maybelle Exley-Duffy. He had made inquiry concerning a "right" undertaker, who would take the dead woman's body from the flat at 1215 Carmen avenue, and, finding none, had decided to remove the corpse himself. He needed an automobile.
Engelke said he didn't know what was discussed by Duffy and Kaufman, but they did talk for a time, then were joined by the unnamed man, after which they all separated. Capt. Shoemaker said this sounded logical.
Credits Engelke's Story.
He is proceeding, he said, on the theory that Engelke told the truth when he said Duffy killed Maybelle, who was known as Mrs. Duffy. He told Lester Exley, a brother of the woman, that he was satisfied Duffy killed her, but that he did not yet know who killed Duffy.
Mrs. Exley identified Engelke as the strange man she met in her sister-in-law's home at 1215 Carmen avenue on Wednesday, Feb. 20, the day of the murder. This, Capt. Shoemaker said, in a measure corroborated Engelke's confession.
"SHOW-UP" SNARES THREE
From a police viewpoint, the afternoon's work was a complete success. Nearly 200 victims of robberies crowded the basement of the detective bureau, seeking the man or men who had robbed them. Horton, Curtis, Engelke, Carl Hein, and Philip Goldberg were kept together.
Four persons identified Horton, but only one was positive. Engelke was pointed out by a woman as the robber who had taken more than $300 in cash.

OUR SECRET AMBITION

Try to Send Thoughts on Ether Waves

Ether waves were used last night by three eminent psychologists in an attempt to transmit thought.
The attempts were made at the Zenith Edgewater Beach radio station. WJAZ. They were conducted by Prof. Robert H. Gault of Northwestern University, Prof. Gardner Murphy of Columbia University, and Prof. H. B. English at Antioch college.
What Tests Mean.
At 10 o'clock, Dr. F. McDonald Jr., superintendent of the Edgewater Beach hotel station, made this announcement: "For a number of years," he told his unseen audience, "psychologists have been conducting experiments with telepathy. Heretofore it has been impossible to conduct these tests with more than a few persons at one time. "But tonight by means of radio three psychologists will make a test with thousands of persons at one time."
The tests then began. They consisted of twelve parts.
Prof. Gault announced that he was thinking of a number between 1 and 1,000. He asked his listeners to sit passively by for three minutes. During that time each person was to write on a slip of paper a number or number which came into his mind. Prof. Gault and his associates meanwhile were thinking of a certain number and in so doing were attempting to project that number to the radio audience.
Eleven other tests followed. Each took three minutes.
What Tests Were.
These were: (1) The professor announced he was thinking of a wild animal. He asked that it be sketched and on it placed a number. (2) The professor was thinking of a horizontal line crossed by a vertical one, the letter of a certain color. The lines were to be drawn. (4) The professor was eating a certain morsel of food. What was it? (5) The professor was undergoing pain on one of his arms or hands. What pain? Where? (6) and (7) were pictures which the listeners were asked to describe. (8) This was a word. (9) Was a drawing. (10) The listeners were asked to think of a unique experience and the professors were to attempt to learn of it. The last two tests were attempts to convey thought from one half of the listeners to the other half by dividing them alphabetically by names.

CHICAGO OPERA'S SPECIAL TRAIN IS NEARLY WRECKED

El Paso, Tex., March 2.—(Special.)—The "artists' special," carrying the Chicago Civic Opera company to Los Angeles, narrowly escaped a serious wreck a half mile out of El Paso tonight.
The main driving rod of the engine broke as the train was leaving the city and gathering speed. Parts of the engine were blown off and strewn along the tracks for a hundred yards before the train was brought to a stop.
When the accident occurred the dining car was crowded with late diners, among them Feodor Chalapin and Rosa Ralen.

The other wounded were Dan Manella, 24 years old, 1066 West Eleventh street, shot twice, and Michael Leporia, 227 Sholto street.

Boy Scouts of Germany Shot Down by Reds

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)
BERLIN, March 2.—(Tribune Radio).—About two hundred communists were arrested at Jena today after they had attempted to break up a gathering of 1,200 German "young storm troops," held aged 14 to 18, who had met to hear Gen. von der Goltz.
Armored cars had been provided by the Thuringian government to protect the meeting.
Several Boys Wounded.
Hardly had Gen. von der Goltz finished his speech when 500 heavily armed communists dashed toward the meeting. They opened fire on the students massed in the square, concentrating their attack on the color bearers, who carried the black, white, and red flags of the monarchy, as well as the banners of their own organizations, Thuringian colors, and the swastika emblem of the Fascists.
Several boys fell wounded. The troops in the armored cars charged the attackers and succeeded in capturing 200 of the Reds.
The speeches at the gathering of the storm troops were intensely anti-nationalistic. Gen. von der Goltz far well knew this.
"Throw Off Foreign Yoke."
"Good-by—we will meet again at the second battle of Leipzig."
Other speakers called on Germany to follow the example of Turkey and throw off the foreign yoke.
The boys who were the victims of the communist attack belong to an organization similar to that of the Boy Scouts of America or England.

Confesses He Killed Priest; Ends Mystery

Edward Freneski, a confidence man wanted by the police of half a dozen cities, confessed to the South Chicago police yesterday that he murdered a Catholic priest here two years ago.
Freneski admits he was the burglar who, on the night of Jan. 27, 1922, shot and mortally wounded the Rev. Father Florian Chodniewski, pastor of the St. Florence Roman Catholic church. The shooting took place in the parish house at 13145 Houston avenue.
A lifelong hatred for all priests was given by Freneski as the motive for the attempted robbery and the murder that followed. The police believe Freneski was responsible for a long list of robberies of priests in Ottawa, Bloomington, Rock Island, Springfield, and other cities.
Old Flame Gives Clue.
Information against Freneski was supplied to the police by Mrs. Mary Ziminski of 13255 Baltimore avenue, who had been his sweetheart in Poland years ago. She told of Freneski's hatred of priests, even in his boyhood days.
"He came to my house on Jan. 27, the day Father Chodniewski was killed," she said. "I was cleaning house. 'What are you cleaning house for?' he asked. 'The priest is coming. He wished to know why I bothered with priests, why I gave them money. He asked me the name of the priest. I'll get him tonight,' he said."
Freneski was searching the priest's room that night when Father Chodniewski was awakened. Freneski backed down the stairs, the priest following. At the foot of the stairs Freneski drew his revolver and fired. The priest toppled down the stairs. He died the following night.
Traced by Stolen Bonds.
After the murder Freneski returned to the Ziminski home and stole $100 and $500 worth of Liberty bonds. He fled from the city.
Four months later Charles Magawski, a former janitor at the church, and Stella Patracki, housekeeper in the parish house, were arrested on suspicion of complicity in the murder, but were released.
Through one of the stolen Liberty bonds, which had been registered at the Hagewich postoffice, Freneski was traced to Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Baltimore, and other eastern cities, where he engaged in swindling schemes under different aliases. He always succeeded in eluding the police, however.
Slayer Returns to City.
Recently, it was learned, he returned to Chicago and communicated with Thomas Manka of 12255 Baltimore avenue. Manka was arrested and furnished the clues which led to Freneski's arrest at a rooming house at 1191 South Ashland avenue, where he was taken into custody.
Confronted by Mrs. Ziminski, he confessed the murder.

INQUIRY TO SHOW VAST SCANDALS IN WASHINGTON

Jobs Were Sold and Crime Shielded.

By ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
Washington, D. C., March 2.—(Special.)—Revelations of corruption during the Harding régime that will shake the country will be made in connection with the investigation of Attorney General Daugherty's administration of the department of justice and the last stage of the inquiry into the navy oil lease scandal, it was learned tonight.
It is freely predicted that the American people will be astonished, dismayed, and disheartened by the disclosures of the conduct and activities of persons closely associated with the attorney general and commonly referred to as the "Ohio crowd" which followed the Harding administration to Washington and proceeded to capitalize the influence its members possessed or were supposed to possess in various departments of the government.
All Varieties of Graft.
Hundreds of thousands of dollars in graft were collected by this ring from persons seeking appointment to office, clemency for prisoners, settlement of income tax cases, liquor permits, and immunity from prosecution for violation of the prohibition and other laws, according to information reaching the senate committee.
One of the big men in the ring maintained a luxurious home in K street and another large suite of rooms in a Washington hotel, where night after night high revelry held sway during the period of the richest hauls of graft.
Eventually the operations of the gang became so notorious that they came to the ears of President Harding. The latter learned how his name was being used by one of the ring leaders to obtain settlements of income tax cases.
Harding Finally Halted It.
Mr. Harding called the offender to the White House, denounced the conspiracy and drove him out of Washington.
But the ring was not broken up. After this jolt by the President of the United States its members trimmed their sails, became more circumspect, but continued to operate.
These doings have been the subject of gossip in Washington for the last three years. When Jesse Smith, the attorney general's confidential man, committed suicide, panic seized the Ohio crowd. It was feared that the whole story of corruption would come out. It was hurried up, however, and then the operations of the ring became bolder than ever.
Quarrel Over Spoils.
The division of the spoils even has become the subject of a legal suit which has been brought to the attention of the committee. In this suit, filed in Oklahoma, one of the members of the Ohio crowd is named as entitled to a $100,000 commission for the adjustment of an income tax case.
The senate committee will investigate all these charges and endeavor to ascertain whether the questionable activities of its associates ever were brought to the attention of Mr. Daugherty.
Some of these matters were mentioned to the federal grand jury in Chicago which indicted Charles H. Forbes, formerly director of the veterans' bureau, and the committee has been informed that the hurried visit of the attorney general to Chicago last week was occasioned by the desire of the jury to question him concerning charges involving his friends and his administration of the department of justice.
Coolidge Follows Chicago Claw.
The jury in Chicago did not pursue the investigation because the agencies of government involved are outside of the veterans' bureau, but the senate committee intends to take the trail where the judicial body left off. John Crim, special prosecutor in the veterans' bureau case, will be asked to consult with the committee and to submit the information which caused the Chicago grand jury to refer to corruption charges in the review of its inquiry which it "came to its attention."
President Coolidge, it also was learned tonight, is determined that the leads opened up by the Chicago jury shall be followed and prosecuted. It is stated that the President personally will study the information before the jury and probably will confer with Mr. Cramer before presenting an indictment of the allegations.

Single Official From Today.
Senator Brookhart (Rep., Ind.), chairman of the committee created by the senate to investigate the charges against the attorney general and conferring with the attorney general and the committee on the subject of the charges against the attorney general.

One of the earliest subjects of inquiry concerns the failure of the attorney general to institute proceedings for violation of the anti-trust law and Clayton act in more than fifty cases in which such action was recommended by the federal trade commission. Then there are some big war fraud cases in which no action was taken by the department of justice.

Scores of witnesses are already listed for examination and a great mass of charges and counter charges have been filed and are ready for the inspection of the committee. The opinion is general that the committee will subject the attorney general and his department to an investigation which before it ends will cover every bureau in that great department.

Burns to Follow Daugherty.
Next to the attorney general himself William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, will be subjected to the hottest fire. One of the charges is that the Burns detective agency has obtained secret records of the department of justice.

While the Brookhart committee is getting its program in order the committee investigating the naval oil leases will be proceeding with the examination of the persons named in the McLean telegram, and this phase of that inquiry will also involve William J. Burns, who is to be called to the witness chair this week to tell what he knows about the use of a department of justice code by McLean's Washington agent.

Mrs. Jessie Duckstein, one of Burns' investigators and his former secretary, will also be quizzed concerning this same matter. McLean himself will take the witness stand later in the week. Francis H. McAdoo, a son of William Q. McAdoo, and E. W. Smithers, the White House telegrapher who managed the Washington end of the McLean leased wire to Palm Beach, will be other witnesses this week.

Fry Into Many Departments.
Developments of striking importance are expected in addition to the revelations which may come out of the Teapot Dome and Daugherty investigating committees. The senate is waiting for reports from six of the executive departments and the United States shipping board, which were requested by resolution to give information about former cabinet members and former senators and representatives who had appeared in cases involving claims since Jan. 1, 1915.

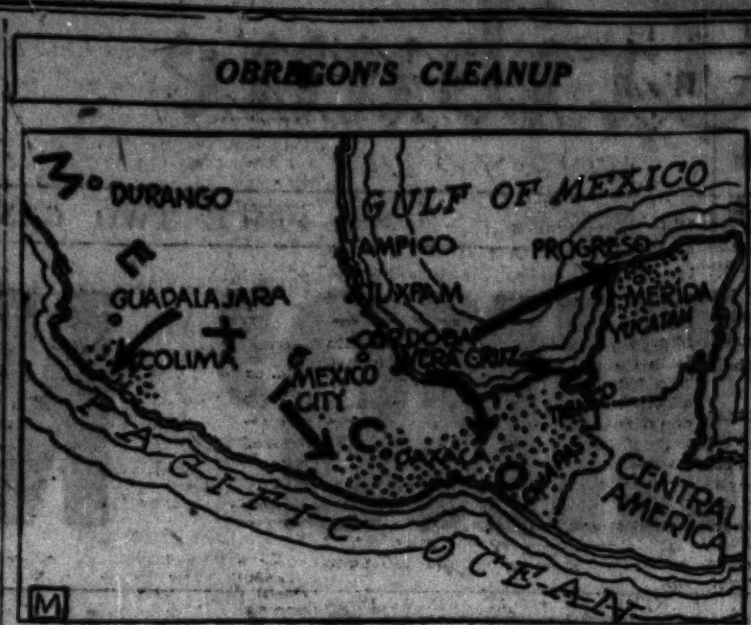

Senator Norris, who introduced the resolution, has stated that for the present, at least, the inquiry will be limited to former cabinet members and former senators in order to obtain the information within a short time. Still another resolution adopted by the senate calls upon the president to have the treasury department supply information concerning the income tax records of E. L. Doherty and Harry P. Sinclair.

Planning to Revoke Oil Leases.
Following the announced agreement reached by the special counsel, Owen J. Roberts and former Senator Atlee Pomeroy, to launch active legal proceedings in the naval oil reserves scandal in the immediate future, a definite plan of procedure has been worked out to expedite these proceedings and get

PEPPER INSISTS G. O. P. SHOULD ITS OWN CROSS
Philadelphia, Pa., March 2.—(Special.)—The Republican party, in the opinion of Senator George Wharton Pepper, must accept responsibility for a "fruitage of unworthiness," result from the fact that "some unworthy men" passed the scrutiny of former President Warren G. Harding.

Speaking at a testimonial given to him and Senator David A. Reed last night, Senator Pepper amazed his audience by a frank discussion of what he described as "the faults of Mr. Harding's virtues." He said: "President Harding, as adequately interpreted by Secretary Hughes, was the embodiment of love for his fellow men. His temperament was what the country needed at a time when the world was filled with bitterness."

But love of mankind, like other virtues, has certain corresponding dangers—the faults of a virtue—and it came to pass that some unworthy men passed his scrutiny, whom a more penetrating and impersonal executive would have detected, and there is a fruitage of unworthiness for which the party must accept responsibility."

DAUGHERTY WAS ASKED TO RESIGN, VANDERLIP SAYS
New York, March 2.—President Coolidge has asked for the resignation of Attorney General Daugherty, but has not received it. Frank A. Vanderlip, retired banker, declared today in an address at the Heights Free Synagogue.

Asked to elaborate on his assertion, or to tell from whom he had obtained the information, Mr. Vanderlip was uncommunicative. "I will stand on that statement, that's all," he told newspaper men.

BANKERS BLOCK LOAN TO MEXICO OWING TO REDS

Bolsheviks Seize Tampico Railway.

BY JOHN HYDE.

(Chicago Herald-Tribune News Service.)
[Copyright, 1924, by The Chicago Tribune.]
Mexico City, March 2.—James Hamilton Lewis of Chicago left here this morning to meet at San Antonio a commission representing the bankers who are backing the proposed loan to Mexico. All negotiations meanwhile have been suspended.

While no statement has been issued, it is known that the British group is perturbed by reports on the political developments here, insisting on a more thorough investigation before closing the deal, wherefore the commission was sent to investigate and report.

The British alarm is due chiefly to the communing of the Tampico street railway and a threat of similar action against the Aguila refinery.

March to South.
Mexico City, March 1.—(By the Associated Press.)—Troops composing the federal column which has been ordered to the state of Guerrero, began leaving Mexico City today for Cuernavaca, whence they will proceed to occupy Iguala, where they will establish an airplane base in preparation for cooperation with forces of Marcelo Caraveo against the rebel leader Figueroa.

Due to the difficult terrain, it has been decided to abandon mass tactics and to divide into small columns operating under orders transmitted by means of airplanes. Reinforcements likewise began leaving the capital for Tehuacan via Puebla, having as their objective an advance upon Oaxaca.

Circle Rebels in Oaxaca.
Oaxaca, Julian Aguila and Francisco Bolanos commanding the advance upon Tehuacan, through the Mixteca region and the states of Puebla and Oaxaca in cooperation with the forces of Gen. Juan Bolanos from Juquila and other forces that are being organized in the Isthmus mountains and detachments from federal garrisons, has been ordered to concentrate at Peñahatun, thereby completely surrounding the Oaxaca revolutionists.

The rebels who still hold Oaxaca under Gen. Fortunato Maycotte and Cuernavaca under Gov. Manuel Garcia Vigil are estimated to number 4,000, but are poorly equipped.

It was reported in official quarters tonight that President Obregon is planning a trip during the coming week to Guadalupe and later to Manzanillo, where he expects to meet Mrs. Obregon and their children, who are returning from Hermosillo where Francisco Estela, the president's brother-in-law, died recently.

In Veracruz Drive.
The stamping out of what remains of the revolutionary movement is being pushed vigorously by the federal government.

Reporting from Morelia the capture of Tzucumburi, in the state of Michoacan, Gen. Vicente Gonzalez, military commander of Michoacan, says the rebellious forces under Jose Benavente and Francisco Cardenas and Pablo Padilla were routed and retreated toward Cuernavaca.

Gen. Gonzalez is mobilizing strong forces at Apizaco and Orizaba for the purpose of helping to surround Gen. Estrada and Gen. Diez.

Three federal expeditions are being organized for operations against the rebel controlled southeastern states. Two of them are leaving soon from Vera Cruz for Yucatan and Tabasco, while the third is intended to subjugate Chiapas.

BURNS TRAILING SENATORIAL FOES OF DAUGHERTY?

Washington, D. C., March 2.—(Special.)—Reports came today to the senate committee which is to investigate Harry M. Daugherty that certain members of the senate are being made the subject of investigation by private detectives attached to the Burns detective agency.

This subject will be one of the first to be taken under scrutiny with a view to determining whether Mr. Daugherty, under fire of the senate, has been trying "to get something on" those who have opposed in the attack.

Some contention was seen between this story and a challenge issued tonight by Senator Wheeler, during the attorney general to give the names of the senators whose resignation he called for in a statement charged to him in Chicago.

Asked by the Montana senator concluded, "I also call upon the attorney general to name any reason why any senator should resign."

DAUGHERTY IN MIAMI TO VISIT HIS SICK WIFE

Miami, Fla., March 2.—Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty arrived in Miami early today and went to the hotel at Miami Beach where his invalid wife is staying. He breakfasted with her and then later went to another hotel where he obtained a room, being unable to find accommodations at his wife's hotel.

Mr. Daugherty's joviality seems to have deserted him and he refused to make any statement to newspaper men, giving orders at his hotel that no one was to see him.

His secretary, Miss E. M. Carroll, said Mr. Daugherty had come on an indefinite stay with his wife and insisted on seclusion. Mrs. Daugherty's illness is complicated by a slight cold and she is confined to bed.

M'ADOO REPLY; D REED'S

Tells Why He Missouri Ca

St. Louis, Mo., March 2.—Senator James A. McAdoo tonight replied to a question of public opinion in Missouri regarding his presidential nomination.

"I have made it a rule to enter into no personal controversy with the public," he said. "I have no personal animosity against any man."

"I must, however, let people know the nature of the campaign which is being run in the name of the Missouri state."

Senator Reed of Missouri is the main reason for the tactics which he is making. "Reed," he said, "is a man who is not a politician. He is a man who is not a politician. He is a man who is not a politician."

"There is a real patriotism in the most glaring display of truth in his personal attack," he said. "I would not stay in Missouri. He criticizes me in his own way. He criticizes me in his own way. He criticizes me in his own way."

"On Jan. 24 last, Mr. Reed, representing Senator Reed, one of my Washington friends, told me that if I entered Missouri, I would be a man who is not a politician. He is a man who is not a politician. He is a man who is not a politician."

"A Republican" said. "My refusal to submit to local blackmail was prompted by Reed's move on the scene to draw my name into a scandal. In this way he is with the Republican party attention from the great nation involving the members of the Missouri state."

"Who is this man who is not a politician? He is the man who is not a politician. He is the man who is not a politician. He is the man who is not a politician."

"He is the man who is not a politician. He is the man who is not a politician. He is the man who is not a politician. He is the man who is not a politician."

MCADOO PENS REPLY; DENIES REED'S CHARGES

Tells Why He Will Enter
Missouri Campaign.

St. Louis, Mo., March 2.—William G. McAdoo tonight replied to attacks by Senator James A. Reed, denouncing his opponent in the democratic presidential nomination race as a man who resorts to the most glaring disregard for the truth in his personal attacks on Missouri.

The statement is in the form of a letter to C. C. Oliver, St. Louis, chairman of the McAdoo campaign in Missouri.

Mr. McAdoo answers Reed.

"I have made it a rule of my life not to enter into personalities in the conduct of public issues," the letter reads. "Grave problems confront the nation which cannot be discussed in an atmosphere of passion and solved by vindictive appeals to prejudices or prejudices."

"I must, however, let the American people know the nature of the attacks which are being made to confuse the real issues in the present campaign."

Senator Reed of Missouri stated recently as the reason for the vicious attacks which he is making upon me personally that 'McAdoo publicly announced that he did not intend to enter the race against any home candidate for reasons which doubtless are satisfactory to himself, he has singled me out as an exception to his general rule. He has come into the state of Missouri, and in securing some support. These conditions force me to make personal references which I would have entirely omitted had I been assailed by McAdoo the same courtesy has been extended to others."

Disregards the Truth.

"Here is a real patriot who resorts to the most glaring disregard for the truth in his personal attacks upon me because I would not stay out of Missouri. He criticizes me in a way which I would have entirely omitted if I had refused to give the men and women of Missouri an opportunity to express their honest convictions in the selection of delegates to the Democratic national convention."

"On Jan. 24 last, Mr. Sam Fordyce, representing Senator Reed, called on one of my Washington friends and said that if I entered Missouri the senator would contend against me, especially in Georgia and California. I refused to submit to political blackmail."

A "Republican" Scandal.

"My refusal to submit to such political blackmail was promptly followed by Reed's move on the floor of the senate to drag my name into the scandal. In this way he is collaborating with the Republican party, to divert attention from the graft and corruption involving the members of the present Republican administration."

"Who is the Man?"

"Who is the man who without regard to truth and justice attacks me
for the furtherance of his ambition?
He is the man who, because of his disloyalty to the Democratic party, was in 1918 thrown out of the Democratic convention of his own state of Missouri when he sought to be a delegate to the national convention."

"He is the man who was repudiated and denied a seat in the 1920 Democratic national convention at San Francisco, when he tried to override the will of the Democrats of his own state
and force his unwelcome presence into the body which was to select the party candidate for the presidency."

He Fought Wilson.

"He is the man who for weeks hampered and obstructed a Democratic President."

"He is the man who fought woman suffrage to the last ditch and opposed the mothers and women of America the right to go to the polls and help shape the destiny of their country."

"He is the man of whom Woodrow Wilson wrote in 1912, 'To those who have closely observed Mr. Reed's career in Washington, he has shown himself incapable of sustained allegiance to any person or party.'

"He is the man who wishes to destroy the reputation of any man who does not assert any independence of his selfish egotism."

"He is the man who criticizes fairly and justly the law practice of a private citizen and yet, as a senator of the United States, wielding great official influence through his power of appointments and his opportunities to shape legislation, is actively engaged in the practice of law."

can point to a single great lawsuit
which McAdoo has ever tried in court."

"The records in the United States District court in Kansas City, Reed's own home, refute him, because I tried one of the most important lawsuits in the history of American jurisprudence before Judge Van Valkenburgh in 1919. I refer to the case of Smith
vs. the Kansas City Title and Trust company, in which the farm mortgage bankers, who had bled the farmers by usurious interest rates and hard conditions in farm mortgages, attacked the constitutionality of the federal farm loan act."

"Neither Reed's law practice nor my law practice is a political issue.
What is important, however, is the public record. My record as a public official is before the people of the nation."

"Of course the people know that Reed is seeking to obtain control of the delegates from Missouri for 'trading purposes' in the New York convention."

A "Stalking Horse."

"Senator Reed says he is a man of courage. Has he the courage to come out and say for whom he is now the stalking horse? Will he tell the voters to whom he intends to trade the Democratic delegates of Missouri?"

"He is the man who for weeks ham-

DOHENY SAYS IT WAS M'ADOO WHO WAIVED BIG FEE

Both Political Parties Are Called Muckrakers.

New York, March 2.—[Special.]—
E. L. Doheny today asserted that William G. McAdoo came to him after the Democratic administration passed out of existence and waived all claims to the $300,000 contingent fee his firm was to have received had McAdoo been successful in the Mexican negotiations
on behalf of the Doheny interests.

The McAdoo retainer was then fixed at $25,000 a year, and not at $50,000, according to Mr. Doheny, who explained that he was in error when he testified before the Teapot Dome investigating committee that the higher
tainer.

"If Mr. McAdoo had not tried to put me in a false position," Mr. Doheny said, "he would not have put himself in a false position. His connection with me was entirely honorable. He put himself in a false light when he renounced his retainer and severed his connections with the Doheny interests
as if he feared contamination."

How Contempt Came About.

Mr. Doheny pointed out that when Mr. McAdoo left the Wilson cabinet he made a statement saying that his funds were reduced to the point where he must return to the practice of law to support his family. The Doheny interests, always on the lookout for the best lawyers, considered the firm with which McAdoo became actively identified. Mr. Doheny explained that he "selected McAdoo because I considered him a stalwart and a strong man."

The prospective clients of McAdoo believed he was particularly well-fitted to represent them in Mexico, where their interests amounted to $75,000,000.
He was considered well-fitted because of the prestige resulting from his former connection with the national government.

"Mr. McAdoo went to Mexico and entered into negotiations with the Mexican government concerning the retroactive features of article 27 of the Mexican constitution. He set out to accomplish what has since been accomplished by the Republican administration," according to Mr. Doheny.

Gave Up $300,000 Contingent Fee.

"He came to me after the Democratic administration went out," said Mr. Doheny. "He tried to carry the negotiations to a successful conclusion,
and had hoped to receive the $300,000
contingent fee. When the Republican administration accomplished the service required by the agreement Mr. Mc-Adoo released all claim to the $300,000

EX-SERVICE MEN, LEPROSY VICTIMS, GET COMPENSATION

New Orleans, La., March 2.—Two world war veterans afflicted with leprosy visited the private office of Judge Rufus E. Foster in federal district court yesterday and were given their final naturalization papers.

The men, Willard Rae and Herbert Sargeant, came from the leprosy hospital at Carville, where they are confined,
and in company with Dr. Oscar Jewell, state health officer, went to the federal court, where they obtained the papers from Judge Foster enabling them to come within the privileges of the compensation law for disabled veterans.

Rae was said to have contracted the disease while with the army in France.

contingent fee that would have been paid him if he had been successful. It was then agreed that he should pay his firm a retainer of $25,000 a year. I was in error when I testified that it was $50,000."

The election next November "is the sole factor now controlling the politicians who are conducting the so-called all investigation," Mr. Doheny declared. "At present the two political camps are divided. The Democrats at Washington are suppressing the facts, beclouding the issues, and, when necessary to serve their purposes, are including in willful falsehood."

"All Political Muckraking."

"The Republicans have lost both their heads and their spines and seem afraid to make the slightest show of independence or backbone lest it injure their personal political fortunes in the next election."

"No fair minded person can examine the Doheny leases without reaching the conclusion that they are greatly benefiting the government, but that fact is obscured by the mass of political muckraking conducted solely with a view to influencing the election."

Doheny issued a statement concerning the action of the California Democratic state central committee in requesting his resignation as vice president.

"I am grateful to those members of the committee who thought it fair that I should not be judged and condemned without an opportunity to be heard," the statement says. "As for the others, it is quite evident to me,
and will be to the majority of the citizens of the nation, that their action was inspired by campaign politics and did not consider my case on its merits."

"My activities in connection with the Democratic party in California were centered at the last convention upon the advocacy of two issues: First,
to secure the protection of American citizens and American property in all foreign lands, especially in Mexico;
and, secondly, to secure from the convention an expression of encouragement and approval for the aspirations of the people of Ireland. It will be interesting to learn if those now reported to be opposed to me in California are actuated by hostility to the principles I advocated at that time."

WAR PALS GIVE SKIN TO SAVE "BUDDY'S" LIFE

For four months David Miller, veteran of the 13th infantry, with which he fought in the Argonne, has been in the Aurora hospital, burned almost to a crisp in an explosion, fighting for his life, while twenty-five of his former comrades in arms have given skin from their bodies to be grafted to his.

The doctors have had him slung up in a sort of hammock through which he could rest on his shoulders, the only part of his body which was not badly burned.

The skin his "buddies" gave has not been enough to save him entirely.
Yesterday the doctors had to ampu-tate his right leg, an operation out of which he came smiling and still fighting.

Miller was burned when he threw gasoline into a furnace in a plumbing shop where he was employed. He is 34, married, and has two children. The physicians attending him say they believe his fight for life will be successful; they admire his "gumption" and the ex-service men who have offered themselves for the grafting operations and are lined up behind him ready to help him in any way they can.

IN WHICH YOUTH FINDS A JOB AND KEEPS $10 INTACT

His Net Gain for Day Is Just Six Cents.

Several days ago a young stranger in Chicago wrote a letter to The Tribune relating his experience in hunting for a job. In order to learn the actual experience of a job hunter, The Tribune gave the youth a $10 bill, and asked him to see how long he could go without breaking it. His latest exploits are narrated below.

I did without supper on Friday night. In fact, I wasn't very hungry, anyway, and in order to hold on to my last six cents I walked home without getting a daily paper.

Saturday morning I was up early, ready to report at the C-J freight house as a follow-up on a tip given me yesterday by a young lad whose acquaintance had made at the employment office of Armour & Co.

On the street car I handed the conductor my six pennies, received a transfer and hurried to the front of the car before he had a chance to verify the fare. My heart was in my mouth for I was expecting, at any second, to hear a shout of "Hey, you!" or something to that effect, behind me.

Get to Freight Station. The freight station is located on West Pershing avenue, just a few blocks west of Ashland, in what is known as the "Central Manufacturing District." The Whigley company, Loose-Wiles Biscuit company, and the Pullman Couch company are a few of the large plants in this group.

At 9 o'clock I was in the general office of the C-J firm and a young lady who had just come in informed me that if I wanted a position in the freight house I would have to see Mr. Ringer on the platform.

Mr. Ringer was pointed out to me near one of the cars, and I approached a rather stout, genial man of about 35.

Asks for Job. "I came down for a job, Mr. Ringer, and would like to get on here," I said. "Working?"

"Sure, I'll do anything at all just so I can get work."

"Wait in the office over there," and he pointed towards the center of the platform to direct me.

I went into the office, and, unmindful of the five or six people at work there, after waiting for what seemed to me an hour or so, I thought I had better bust up Mr. Ringer.

Put Him Out. I met him walking one of the lanes and he ordered me to come along with him. I followed him back to the office, where he turned me over to one of his men with orders to "put him on," who in turn transferred me to the men at the desk to give me a badge.

The "badge" proved to be an ordinary piece of cardboard, about an inch square, with the number, 131 written in pencil. I signed my name and address on a card pushed towards me, and then on an employee.

From 9:30 to 12 I think I carted out of one train and into the other every commodity used in the world today by people in all walks of life—foodstuffs, huge valves, beds, automobile parts, boxes of chewing gum, barrels of oil, lemons, sewer pipe, radiators, iron wheels, roofing shingles, plate glass, mail handles, garden implements, machinery, cans of paint, stoves, and boxes, bolts, crates, cans, pulps, cases, barrels, hampers and baskets full of the necessities that make this world go round.

I had forgotten that I had had no breakfast and that I was hungry until I noticed the men putting up their trucks and rushing over to the coat room. It was time for lunch.

One of my co-truckers loaned me a quarter when I explained that I was broke and I promised to repay him the next time I saw him.

On the corner of the street, in a small restaurant, I partook of a light lunch, which set me back 17 cents.

Interest in Work Lags. Towards 2 o'clock in the afternoon my interest in the work began to lag. I was not attracted any more in the article of merchandise I would carry, but whether that next load would be a light or a heavy one, my muscles ached, my back hurt, my feet were sore, and I had a terrible headache.

At 4:30 sharp, tickled to death, to be through for the day, I reported the fact that I was quitting (one of the rules of my "adventure" was that I could not stay at one particular position more than one day), handed in my "badge," and was informed to return Monday at about 3 p. m. for my money.

I boarded a car for downtown, and out of the 25 cents that I had borrowed at noon I had 1 cent left, as I stopped off at State and Van Buren streets. I must get some supper tonight, for I was as hungry as a wolf. The problem was, how would I go about it without disturbing that "sacred" note among the pages of my notebook.

Finally, in a luncheon on West Madison, in the Haymarket district, I got a chance to wash silverware for my supper, which I ate before I started to work. At 3:30 I was told that that would be all and the owner presented me with a quarter from the cash register as I left. I was now rich. My net worth was 26 cents.

The story of the young stranger's search for a job will be continued in tomorrow's issue of The Tribune.

CITY THRILLS TO PLEA FOR AID OF LOST BATTALION

Demand Prison Release at Massmeeting.

Charges that official and political America has forgotten our fighting men—the "lost battalion," which languishes in prisons while the slackers, spies and seditionists are free—were hurled at Washington yesterday from a massmeeting representing hundreds of thousands of their comrades in arms at Madison temple, Cass and Ohio streets.

After the speaker the big crowd stood and unanimously adopted a resolution demanding that "the President and congress take immediate steps toward a review to be made by a board or commission of civilians, with sessions open to the public, as to our civil courts, to the end that any case or cases which warrant the exercise of executive clemency may be appropriately relieved."

Half a hundred or more organizations of veterans and their auxiliaries were represented in the crowd which attended the meeting and pledged its support to the "rescue expedition."

Copies of the resolutions were forwarded last night to President Coolidge and to every member of the congress.

"Let's give these boys of ours a chance, let's send them back to their broken hearted mothers," pleaded H. Ford McNeil, past national commander of the American Legion, who came to Chicago from his home in Mason City, Ia., just to speak at the massmeeting.

Then he told of the superhuman sacrifices, the abnormal conditions of which led many of the men to commit the infractions for which they were in the prisons serving sentences in many instances many times too heavy for the nature of the offenses.

Attorney Frank Comerford berated P. Langwell.

"political and official" Washington for turning a deaf ear for so long to the appeal on behalf of the "lost battalion."

"Such men," said Attorney Comerford, "have all long since been liberated from the prisons of the country. And if they were not guilty of treason and sedition, then Jesus was a friend of Jesus, then Benedict Arnold was an American patriot!"

"There is nothing in common," he continued, "in the case of the men who were khaki and the cases of those men who twisted their bellies in Jesus Christ in something behind which they could hide to keep out of the service of their country."

The lawyer now outlined a number of the cases of the men who were given years to life by courts martial, that of two youths of 15, accused, at stealing some $127 army shoes, for which they were sentenced to ten years in the federal penitentiary.

Appeals to His Honor. Harry O. Rosenberg, representing the Veterans of Foreign Wars, appealed to his audience to act for the "lost battalion" "for your own sake more than for theirs, for the sake of your own honor."

Among the many organizations which got behind the movement to liberate the "lost battalion" are the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, who donated the use of the Madison temple for the meeting.

Representatives of the Shrine present at the meeting were: Illustrous Potentate Edward L. Johnson, Thomas J. Houston, imperial marshal of the imperial council of North America; Chief Rabbi Arthur H. Vincent, Assistant Chief Rabbi H. E. Ed-ward Mills, and Oriental Guide George P. Langwell.

Poison for Officers of Prison Kills One Convict

Jefferson City, Mo., March 2. (United News.)—A wholesale plot to poison officers of the state prison here was being investigated today, following the death of William Newell, a 1918, last night. Two other prisoners were made ill. The convicts were served their evening meal in the prison hospital dining room, which is very rarely done, it was learned. Officials believe plotters who had access to the dining room had slipped the poison in food which would have been consumed by officers Sunday morning at breakfast. Newell was sentenced from Buchanan county in 1916 for murder.

FRENCH POLICY CRITICIZED BY SEN. M'CORMICK

Ruhr, France, Debt to U. S. Under Fire.

Senator M'Cormick has sent the following letter to the editor of the European edition of The Tribune in Paris, criticizing the Poincaré policy for the settlement of the reparations issue with Germany:

Editor the European Edition of The Tribune:

Eighteen months ago, returning from Europe, I ventured to predict that M. Poincaré's policy would isolate the government politically or morally from those of the great countries with which France had been associated in the war.

I stated unequivocally that his proposed military occupation of the Ruhr, then known to be planned, but nevertheless denied, would diminish the productivity of the Ruhr, would reduce the reparations payable by Germany, would disorder her social, political, and economic life, and would redound not only to the injury of Germany and of all Europe, but especially would impair her ultimate ability to make good the losses suffered by France.

The Fall of the Franc.
I publicly asserted a year ago that as the franc already had fallen, it would fall lower; that if it fell to twenty to the dollar, there was no good reason why it should fall more than fifty to the dollar. All of this, of course, is now undeniable. It is entirely credible that the franc may sell in the American market at one hundred to the dollar, and that the franc, which once was worth twenty American cents, may be worth one American cent.

Certainly, if we review the history of the last few years, that same franc has been an obvious pursuit of the mark, the crown, and the ruble. If it is to be halted it must be by the adoption of a policy different from that of M. Poincaré during the last year.

Certainly in the present situation, we might none of us overestimate the capacity of public men, or to exaggerate the foresight of financiers, and surely certainly we must realize that the social and economic decadence of the old world is not going to be arrested by middle aged and even older statesmen who were trained in the European political doctrines of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries.

New Leaders Needed.
Let the nineteenth century politicians move off the scene and give way to those who will give due heed to the economic present as well as to the political past. There are some public men in all countries who have dared at least to whisper that the treatment of peace violated the professed principles of the victors, and that they laid down political frontiers in violation of nationalist, strategic and economic boundaries. Call them forward! When last I was across seas, there were some European politicians as there were a few continental journalists (and still more in England) who had traveled enough to know that America would not guarantee a settlement which could not last because it was in so many points unsound and unjust. Whatever may have been proclaimed later, the American congress originally declared the existence of war between the United States and the Hohenzollern dynasty, not to make the defeated civilization of western Europe, but because the Kaiser's government by formal proclamation had denied the rights of American citizens on the high seas. We fought the British upon this issue in 1812. If need be, doubtless we shall be ready to fight upon this issue again as we shall be to fight to defend the Monroe doctrine, in defense of which we would have fought the emperor of the French in 1865, if he had not abandoned Maximilian in Mexico. These are the two issues upon which the peace loving and unimpaired Americans may be forced to war.

U. S. Generous Creditor.
Despite America's refusal to become a party to the treaties of peace or to guarantee the status quo in Europe, it is wide of the mark to say that she has adopted an isolationist policy, or that she has been anything but a generous creditor under conditions which have tried her patience and taxed her confidence in her debtors.

made a polite gesture toward funding their debts to us. M. Poincaré, who showed us that courtesy, when he was in Washington in behalf of France, declined to recommend that his government acknowledge in peace the validity of the debt to the American government contracted in time of war, although it was suggested that payment of interest and principal be deferred for a decade.

France's Debt to America.
Thus it is that half of the unfunded debt due the government of the United States is owed us by the French government—and, likewise, half of the unpaid interest due us every year.

The interest due and unpaid by European states about equals the annual cost of the proposed adjusted compensation to our soldiers, resisted by our treasury.

What are the cumulative facts regarding that debt and the policy of the French government which increasingly attract the attention of the average thoughtful American, who cherishes for France, as for other countries, a friendly feeling?

He sees France, which finds herself unable to pay her own government debt to lend millions and millions to new governments in Central Europe for the purpose of military armament.

He has been told that it was ungrateful for the German Blamark to separate Alsace-Lorraine from France, and reads daily of the efforts of the French Poincaré to separate the Palatinate from Bavaria.

He remarked the destruction of the northern department of France as wanted, but now he is reminded that Louis the Great of France did the same sort of thing in Germany.

The Rhine Folly.
He was told that if he entered the war in defense of American rights, at the same time he came to the support of European "civilization," but now he reads that in the Rhine valley the "civilization" which he helped to save has garriaged Christian villages with semi-civilized, barbarous, and savage troops, Algerians, Moroccans, and Senegalese.

He has learned that M. Poincaré's occupation of the Ruhr not only has secured nothing for France, not only has increased the number of starving German children, for whose relief President Coolidge has called upon American charity, but only has disorganized German production, but that it has so demoralized all European industry and exchanges that in turn it has injured American trade and American agriculture.

Thus the thoughtful American observer has come to understand that M. Poincaré's policy has not only hurt Germany and Europe, but that M. Poincaré's policy has hurt America also. This he regards as a poor return for having entered the war in Europe on the eve of a German victory. This average American never has had any sympathy for Blamark, Thyssen, Krupp, and their confederates. Now he learns that if these German magnates have obstructed the German payment of reparations and have exploited the German people, they have in France their counterpart in the Comité des Forges (the French steel combine).

What are these ironmasters or M. Poincaré trying to do? You cannot have your bread and eat it. You cannot wreck an industry and make it pay. You cannot demand the impossible of a German government and inspire the German people with that respect for the German republic which will enable it to assure the submission of the German Socialists and Rhenish magnates, and which will enable it to pay reparations.

Warning to Americans.
Corfu, Smyrna, Mosul, Mosul, Pluma, and the Saar together write for the average American a warning that the policy of the European governments is not very different from what it has been throughout all modern history. There are obvious and undeniable analogies between the predatory adventures and forays of William II, and of Napoleon I and Napoleon III.

We recall the punitive and uncertain economic clauses of the treaty of peace, the terms of the Spa agreement, and of the London ultimatum. They were savage or ridiculous. Reading the dispatches from all the capitals of Europe, we are driven to agree with Ferrero that the economic and social decadence of the old world cannot be checked. Consumption cannot be brought to balance production unless and until the governments, victors and vanquished, in good faith seek to establish actual good will throughout Europe.

The average American is not unwilling to collaborate in a business way to restore exchanges and markets, but nothing which the European governments have done invites him to that collaboration. Their policies confirm him in the belief that he was wise to reject the treaties falsely called treaties of peace, and which even to decline membership in the league of nations.

The recent discourtesy of the German embassy has not blinded the average American as to the facts. The currency and credit of the victorious debtor states of continental Europe will continue to fall in America unless the average American is convinced by their acts that their policy hereafter will be guided by prudence and a desire for peace rather than for domination or vengeance. No American political party this year will dare to endorse the treaty of Versailles or to advocate adherence to the league of nations, or political entanglement with Europe. But more than this, unless there is a drastic change in the relations of European governments toward one another, which apparently must be inaugurated by France, neither the American experts in Europe nor any New York banking house can float any large European loans in America. As it is, South American bonds sell better in the United States than those of continental Europe, and we are unconsciously building up Asia and Latin-American markets to take the place of those European markets which European governments promise to rebuild beyond recovery during our lifetime.

DINERS FLEE AS MOIST SEXTET HURLS CROCKERY

Refused Whisky, They Wreck Cafe.

Some thirty late diners were solving the mysteries of Chinese cookery in the Loyola Garden, 6342 Sheridan road, at an early hour yesterday when a taxi cab set down three boisterous couples at the door. From their noisy entrance it was evident they were not supporters of the Volstead theory.

They ordered steak dinners even before they had abandoned their wraps and then one of the men whispered in the ear of Kinder Wong, the waiter. The whisper was so loud that all of the thirty diners caught the word: "Whisky." Wong shook his head.

"No got," said he.

"Tell it to Greener," roared the patron. "Where's the manager?" Wong pointed to Charles J. Jean, the manager. Jean was trying to convince the thirsty one he could not be served with intoxicants when the other two men and the three women crowded around the cashier's desk and began clamoring for whisky. Jean ordered Wong and Hop Sing, another waiter, to eject the six from the restaurant.

"How do you get that way?" inquired one of the young women, picking up a plate and setting it at the manager's head. It missed and crashed against a mirror. One of the men grabbed a sugar bowl and hurled it at Wong. All six joined in the battle. Jean ducked behind the counter and Wong and Sing crawled under tables. Harry Moy, a cook, stuck his head out of the swinging doors and met a sugar bowl. He faded from sight.

Patrons Next Targets.

With no more orientals for targets, the thirty six turned their attention upon the other patrons, showering plates, knives, forks and pepper shakers about them as they fled from the restaurant. One of the men called a chair through a plate glass window.

Then all six hurried out in the wake of the last scamping patron, jumped into the taxi again, and sped away. Jean and the waiters were cleaning up the wreckage in the otherwise deserted restaurant when the Rogers Park police arrived.

TWODAYBRIDE, 17, VANISHES WITH HUSBAND'S $400

Alexander J. Chmiel, 2243 Carmen avenue, reported to the police last night that his 17-year-old bride, Mrs. Helen Chmiel, whom he married last Thursday, disappeared with $400 he had given her to hold for a few moments and a real coat belonging to Mrs. Edward Lieberman, 640 Barry avenue. He believes his wife may have fled to New York with a former sweetheart.

Chmiel said he and his wife were visiting Saturday evening at the home of the Liebermans, with whom they were planning an automobile trip to St. Louis. It was to have been their honeymoon. Chmiel went to a drug store to purchase some ice cream, leaving the $400 with his wife. She slipped on Mrs. Lieberman's coat, saying she was going to meet her husband at the drug store. She failed to return.

SEE DECLARES EINSTEIN THEORY PROVED FALLACY

West Upset It.

San Francisco, Cal., March 2.—Speaking before the California Academy of Science here today, Capt. T. J. J. See, professor of mathematics, United States navy and government astronomer at Mare Island, announced the results of a series of tests of prominent investigators which, he said, show the complete collapse of the Einstein theory of relativity.

The investigators, on the results of whose researches Capt. See bases his conclusion, that the Einstein theory is a fallacy, include Prof. Charles Lane Poor of Columbia university, New York. One of the doctrines of the Einstein theory especially attacked by the navy mathematician is that of the "curvature of space." "A greater fallacy than the doctrine of the curvature of space has not arisen in 3,000 years," he declared.

Doubts It Is Verified.

From fragmentary and incomplete results, founded on the erroneous calculations by Einstein and Heddington, Capt. See said, "the impression has prevailed that the theory (Einstein's) was largely verified, but the latest results, based largely on the speaker's discovery of a fallacy in the doctrine of the curvature of space, and the rigorous integration of the equations of relativity by Prof. Charles Lane Poor of Columbia university, question this reasoning."

Capt. See analyzed the results of the recent discoveries as follows:

It was held that the motion of the perihelion orbit of the planet Mercury afforded a definite test of the theory of relativity. At length it turns out that the theoretical progression of 43 seconds per century calculated by Einstein and Heddington is erroneous. Poor shows that the plus 43 seconds per century heretofore used is only the first term of a series, the second term being minus 29 seconds per century, leaving an outstanding difference of only plus 13 seconds per century.

What the Movement Means.

In the language of the layman, it was explained that the progression of the perihelion of the orbit of Mercury refers to the movement through the signs of the zodiac of that point at which Mercury—in its revolutions around the sun—is nearest to that body. The fluctuations of this point varied sufficiently in a century to indicate to some astronomers that the law of gravitation did not cover all the possibilities in the movement of heavenly bodies.

Capt. See then explained his kinetic theory of the ether, which, briefly, is that throughout space is the most dense of all the gases—the ether. To the unit particles of this he assigns a chromaticness inferior to electrons, even, and a velocity exceeding that of light. Capt. See believes other particles travel at the rate of 294,000 miles a second, while light travels at only 186,000 miles. He avers the ether is 4,000 times smaller than a hydrogen molecule, thus enabling it to penetrate any other substance and will assist in holding the planets in their places.

It is one of the doctrines of the theory of relativity that no such thing as ether exists.

MANUFACTURERS · IMPORTERS · WHOLESALE · RETAILERS

Retail Store · State, Washington, Randolph and Wabash

From the earliest days of this business our faith has been in quality merchandise. By this we mean merchandise that is produced with a determination to make it as good as possible—distinguished from merchandise that is skimmed in manufacture so it can be sold for a low price.

It has been our experience that quality merchandise attracts and holds the most desirable class of patronage in the community. The remarkable growth of our Retail Store is conspicuous proof of this. Our Wholesale, supplying quality merchandise to thousands of the more important retail stores throughout the country, has enjoyed a corresponding growth.

Those who understand true economy know that a sound article at a fair price is a better value than an inferior article at a slightly lower price.

Pique Bindings Accent the Tailored Line of This Suit

AND while reaffirming the trimness of the straight box cut, the white pique edgings on coat, pockets and skirt likewise respect the feminine desire for contrast to the navy Patou crepe. Its white silk matelasse vest is made somewhat like an overblouse. Price, $150.

Coats for the Open Road Again—Traveling, Motoring, Walking

WITH the first suspicion of Spring and March winds blustering, the whole world puts on its Top Coat and takes to the open road. With some it's travel, with others, motoring or walking or golf. But the proper Coat is of vast importance.

The model sketched at the right is of a soft imported fabric in a delicate shade of yellow-green. Rows of fine vertical tucks form the body of the Coat, and rows of horizontal tucks mark the three-quarter line.

The other is of a broad plaid fabric in color combinations most unusual with a smoked and plaited effect.

The Preliminary Opening of This Season's Millinery

WITH this opening display of Millinery for a new season, all the changes in style which have so long been merely tendencies are now definitely introduced. The colors, the shapes and the lovely trimmings, which have been devised for Spring, and which promise to make this one of the most successful Springs in the history of fashion, are exemplified in a great number of fascinating ways.

Notes on Some of the New Styles

Fur is often used in combination with straw, one Hat being trimmed with leopard. When flowers are used they are not used sparingly, and are laid softly on the brim rather than in the flat effect formerly so popular. They also droop from the side.

The "Butterfly" Hat—a distinctive creation, is made of lace and fabric. Hat and Scarf Sets for dress, street and sports wear are made of canton crepe beautifully embroidered. There are also Sets of French silk back duvetyn embroidered in wool.

Beginning Today in the Second Floor Silk Section—A DISPLAY OF PRINTED SILKS DESIGNED BY LEON BAKST

LEON BAKST, long identified with the art of theater decoration, now lends his genius as a supreme colorist and creator of brilliant design to the patterning of Silks for Costumes. Always original, always vivid, he has in these Patterns deftly fitted the colors and motifs to their purposes as Frocks, Blouses, Scarfs, Negligees and Trimmings. They are now displayed and may be purchased in our Silk Section.

The Patterns, all handblocked to permit freer range of design and adaptable color combinations, are developed on Satin Canton of the finest quality. Expressing the artist's natural predilection for the Russian and Oriental, the eight distinct designs are each treated in four colors. They are exclusive with us in Chicago. The names are:

A Russian Sable Scarf Richly Completes Many a Costume

SUCH a Scarf plays a dual part in the well defined modes of the season. Its sleekness and slender length fit it deftly into the straight tailored scheme, both for emphasis and for the softening effect of its deep, rich shading. And its full-furred depth is always graceful with less severe costumes.

A Collection of Two-Skin Scarfs Specially Priced at $250 and $325

The Scarfs are two-skin, beautifully shaded natural Russian Sable. The pelts were obtained at an advantage and were mounted in our own workrooms.

An Afternoon Frock's Proof of Undeniable Smartness

Often Lies in Its Ingenious Embroidery

THE less formal type of Afternoon Frock is inclined to be a bit conservative about its trimming, but many of the newest and smartest models gain their decorative effects with the use of lovely embroidery. And usually this embroidery brings in a note of color contrast.

One of those illustrated below is of navy or black flat crepe, with embroidery on the collar, the sleeves, the skirt, and on the open bolero effect at the waistline. It is made with the attractive new standing collar and long sleeves; and the skirt is perfectly plain in back.

The other Frock is trimmed with ecru embroidered net. In black, navy, gray and tan. Also with long sleeves and a standing collar. Both are priced at $125.

HOLD FUNERAL TODAY FOR MRS. ELIZA SIMMONS

Funeral services will be held today for Mrs. Eliza Simmons, one of Chicago's oldest citizens, who died on Friday at her home, 1371 East 48th street, at the age of 95. Mrs. Simmons was the widow of Joseph Simmons, who was one of the founders of the packing industry. He operated Chicago's first sausage factory in which sausage was made by machinery.

Mrs. Simmons was born in London, England, May 15, 1829, and came to the United States as a bride in 1849. It took the couple six weeks to make the voyage in a sailing vessel. Her first child was born in a house which stood on the site of the present Tacoma building, La Salle and Madison streets. She is survived by three children, Mrs. James E. Davis and Alfred Simmons of Chicago and Arthur Simmons of New York. Services will be held in Boydston's chapel, 424 street and Cottage Grove avenue, at 1 o'clock this afternoon. Burial will be at Mount Hope.

CARDINAL ASKS BELGIAN WOMEN TO BAN SILK HOSE

Urges Economy to Stop Fall of Currency.

BY VINCENT SHEEHAN.

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.) (Copyright 1924 by The Chicago Tribune.)

RUSSELS, Belgium, March 2.—Cardinal Mercier, primate of Belgium, today issued a pastoral letter, which was read in all the Catholic churches, it called on the people of the country to have confidence in their national destiny and cooperate with the government's task of restoring the shattered finances.

The cardinal said Germany has systematically ruined its currency and finances in order to defraud its creditors. He proclaimed it as Belgium's duty to "force Germany into submission."

In a plea for individual economy, the cardinal pointed out that 160,000,000 francs ($3,000,000) was spent in Belgium last year on imported silk stockings. He implored the Belgian women to give up silk hosiery because every importation helps in the depreciation of the Belgian franc.

The cardinal's letter, which is considered of prime political importance, declared the world war will not be over until 1928 and asked the people to strengthen their hearts for a worse war—Germany's economic assault.

According to predictions today Belgium's next premier will be M. Renkin, who is a moderate Flemish Catholic.

BREASTED TRIES COMPROMISE ON KING TUT'S TOMB

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)

CAIRO, March 2.—While the Egyptian government has issued the program of the official opening by the antiquities service of Tut-Ankh-Amen's tomb on Thursday and has issued over 100 invitations, a final attempt to effect a compromise is being made through the efforts of Prof. James Breasted of Chicago. He has been requested by Countess Carnarvon to act as intermediary and has been negotiating today with the Egyptian government. When asked today regarding the prospects of a settlement, Prof. Breasted replied he did not think them bright.

Hold Funeral Today for the Rev. John N. Jaeger

Edward F. Hoban, Catholic auxiliary bishop of Chicago, will officiate. Abbot Jaeger was the first Benedictine abbot in the Chicago diocese. He was born in Czechoslovakia in 1844 and came to America when he was 8 years old. He founded in Chicago the St. Procopius priory, constructed into an abbey in 1894; the Bohemian Benedictine Press, and St. Procopius college, transferred later to LaSalle.

WHAT KIND OF GIRL TO MARRY? HERE'S FORMULA

Pastor Shows Types of Girls in Pulpit.

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.

"Women duty classification," said the Rev. E. E. Griffin, pastor of the Rogers Park Baptist church, Sunday and Greenleaf avenues, after he had exhibited five types of girls to his audience. His subject was "The Kind of Girl to Marry."

Each one of the young women stepped into a framework of flowers and tissue paper lattice work which had been arranged in the front of the church over the baptistry, while a spotlight was turned on. There was a society girl in an evening gown, the athletic girl in a sweater, the student in college cap and gown, the business girl in a tailor made suit, and the domestic girl in apron holding in her hand a pie.

Must Know the Girl. Afterward the Rev. Mr. Griffin discussed the ill-effects of types as an indication of a girl's real desires and capacities.

"In picking a wife you must know the real girl," he said. "A society girl may be such because she is born in a home on the gold coast. At heart she may be ambitious to become a student or even a business girl. Here is the business woman, who goes daily to her task in the office. Perhaps she hates a business life and is only longing for the day when she can escape its bondage."

"You cannot classify girls because no one is wholly of one type. The athletic girl may at times be a student and at other times a society girl."

The Kind to Marry. "The only way to decide on a life companion is to know the girl's desires, ambitions, motives, in short, her real character. The right girl to marry is the one with the true heart, free from deception, exaggeration, and vanity."

Some one gave the advice to a young man: "If you want a good wife, find a good mother and then it doesn't make much difference which one of the daughters you marry." The type is like the difference in physical charm. There is the blonde and brunette, the slender and the stout, the stately and the saucy faced. Each has her own charm. Each will make a good wife if only the heart is right.

Portugal and Spain Trade Compliments of Amity

(Chicago Tribune Foreign Service.) Lisbon, March 2.—(Tribune Radio.)—A betterment of relations between Spain and Portugal is indicated by the arrival in Lisbon of a delegation of Spanish students bearing greetings from King Alfonso to the Portuguese nation. Leaders of the Portuguese federation of labor arrested at Seville more than two months ago have been released by the Spanish police.

gether. I see no reason why this problem, if approached from the widest aspect and if considered in conjunction with the cognate problem of interrelated debts, should not on an early day be solved in a manner to give England hope of economic stability in Europe and France the assurance that her just requirements will be met."

M. Poincaré Stands Pat.

Although Premier Poincaré's reply was written at a time when votes of confidence are not so easy to get in the French chamber of deputies, and when he was fighting for his position, he stands pat. He does not discuss his desire to enter into a sentimental rapprochement with Mr. MacDonald. It might seem at first that he would, for he opens his letter:

"I am in full agreement with you both as regards your review of the question to be settled and as regards the methods contemplated for their solution. Far from being irreconcilable, the interests and desires of our two countries are altogether in harmony and both can only be satisfied by the same means."

This statement is more adroit than yielding, for later he shows that his desire of the proper methods are wholly unchanged, although he has greater friendliness for the league of nations.

Denies Annexation Dreams. "When we demand our reparations and security we are not giving way to narrow, selfish sentiments, but we are simply seeking to create conditions of a durable peace in Europe," he asserted. "Without peace founded on justice the commercial and industrial life of England unfortunately cannot be reborn. On the other hand, the day France is indemnified and shielded."

tered from attack the whole continent will have a greater likelihood of attaining tranquility."

The French premier denies France has dreams of political and economic annexation of Germany or desires to annex even one inch of German soil. He declares that France never sought anything not recognized to be hers by the treaty.

If that treaty had been carried out she would never have complained," he says.

Arms Against German Revenge.

Mr. MacDonald wrote of the British concern over the military air forces in west France. Premier Poincaré says this attitude is incomprehensible to the French, and asks:

"Are there really Englishmen who suppose France would be capable of fratricidal preparations against their country? Our military serial establishments are exclusively designed to defend against an attempted German revenge."

He describes the French nursing of the little anteater as a peaceful character, and explains: "Pending the grant, if possible, of more effective guarantees for the maintenance of peace we have been anxious to keep in contact with all nations interested in the loyal application of the treaties out of which the new constitution of Europe has arisen." For the last four years we have never ceased to state that England's adherence to this group of friendship would be considered the best guarantee here. Moreover, in tending the central Europeans' resources, necessary for defense, we have done nothing which could impoverish ourselves or prevent us from paying our own debts, since the loans we have agreed on were only agreed on in exchange for positive pledges."

"Quit Ruhr When Germany Pays." Premier Poincaré declares the pressure on the Ruhr will cease on the day Germany pays its debts and the occupation of the Rhineland will end "when the conditions laid down in the treaty are fulfilled and our security guaranteed."

He asserts France intends also to magnify the role of the league, and hopes its progress will "soon justify the associated nations in proceeding to a coordinated limitation of armaments, which will not expose the most peace loving to enterprises most warlike."

His expressed wish for a closer entente is followed by a warning of the result if England and France are indifferent to each other.

"It is only France and England who would have to pay the price of such dissensions. We owe it to civilization to remain united."

FILIPINOS PLACE BOYCOTT ON U. S. GOODS, PAPERS

Washington, D. C., March 2.—(Special.)—The Philippine Press bureau, an organization maintained in Washington out of the million peso fund appropriated by the Philippine legislature from insular government revenues to further Philippine independence, announced today, on advice from the Philippine independence commission at Manila, that a boycott of American goods and American newspapers published in the Philippines had been undertaken by the Filipinos as a protest against the action of Ben F. Wright, the new insular auditor, in suspending recognition from the independence fund to the United States on the ground that this course is illegal.

In making the announcement the boycott is described more euphemistically as "abstaining from patronizing American goods and American papers."

The announcement is contained in a cablegram to the Philippine independence mission in Washington which also states that a mass meeting is to be held in Manila to explain the situation to the people and ask them to give contributions for a voluntary independence fund.

Mothers!

Give the Children WRIGLEY'S after every meal

The following is from a recent work on teeth and health:

"Dentists have found that the exercise of gum chewing brings about a better nutrition of the teeth. . . ."

"The cleansing action of the gum between the teeth helps to keep them free from the particles which lodge in the crevices and cause decay."

You know how hard it is to get the children to clean their teeth. By giving them WRIGLEY'S you not only reward them for cleaning their teeth, but the reward is actually the means of performing this important service!

WRIGLEY'S is a benefit and a pleasure combined. It serves two purposes—and its cost is very small.

Aids digestion, too, and acts as an antiseptic wash for the mouth and throat.

Choice of several flavors—all of WRIGLEY'S quality, standard of the world.

Every Step in Pain!

Do you suffer from pain in feet? The new Post System is giving permanent relief to 97 out of every 100 patients.

Why Suffer Every Day? The ounce of prevention is worth many pounds of cure. Correct your foot-faults before they conquer you. The foot is made for work and service, and will stand much abuse. It is, however, made up of many small parts, each of which supports the others. Through sharp strains or twists or ill fitting shoes these bones are sometimes misplaced—the whole arch collapses, the foot spreads, its parts press on delicate nerves, and it goes from bad to worse. It cannot heal itself unless given the opportunity. THE BONES MUST BE PUT IN PLACE.

Our Method We know the exact location of each bone and ligament. We will replace them with our hands, and then Nature will form them in place. BRACES AND SUPPORTS ARE DISCARDED because Nature restores the foot to normal, and requires no braces are needed. You cannot determine this condition with your eye. If your feet are sore and sore easily, then you need attention.

Foot Examination Free We charge you nothing for an examination. After we look at your feet we will give you a clear estimate of the cost of giving you PERMANENT RELIEF. This is an experiment with us. Your foot troubles are over forever if you write, phone or call.

Diplomas.

Warfare on quack doctors turned out through diploma "mills" will be resumed, it is planned, during the annual congress on medical education and licensure, public health and medicine, which opens this morning at the Congress hotel for a three days session.

Back Protection of Public.
The conference, which is held under the auspices of the American Medical Association, is especially important this year, "because an announcement issued yesterday, because of the public interest in medical education, accused by the facts recently brought out concerning the sale of medical diplomas and irregularities in state licensing boards."

"Tuesday's sessions will be devoted particularly to the problem of protecting the public against incompetent physicians," Dr. Stanley H. Osborn, state health commissioner of Connecticut, will speak on this topic.

Honor to Chicagoans.
Delegates to the meeting will pay tribute to these Chicago men at a banquet tonight in Hotel La Salle. The honor guests will be A. S. Bacon, Presbyterian minister; Dr. M. T. Macfarlane, American College of Surgeons; and E. A. Gilman, Wesley Memorial hospital. They are, respectively, retiring president, president, and president-elect of the American Hospital Association.

Dr. A. J. Cohn, of Chicago, president of the American College of Surgeons, will be the principal banquet speaker.

The conference official program for the three days announces addresses on a wide range of medical subjects and hospital administration.

Board Seized After Race
New York, March 2.—(Special.)—The power yacht Monon, valued at $10,000, with a quantity of liquor on board, was seized today after a race on the bay with four police speed boats in which the latter used machine guns. The yacht was abandoned near Brooklyn bridge. There was not a mark on the hull or the cabin of the Monon to show that the fugitive had been hit by one of the shots fired in the course of its chase into race from quarantine.

LIFE INSURANCE FOR BONUS, PLAN OF CONGRESSMAN

(BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.)

Washington, D. C., March 2.—(Special.)—When the house ways and means committee gives consideration to soldiers' bonus legislation this week, Representative Bacharach (N. Y.), a Republican member of the committee, is prepared to offer as a substitute measure a bill providing a life insurance plan, eliminating all special features, such as land grants, vocational training, etc. There is a strong tendency toward something of this sort, substitute bills eliminating everything but the insurance certificates already having been proposed by some of the members of the house, including spokesmen for the soldiers' bloc.

Explains Insurance Plan.

"There is much disagreement as to just what the actual cost of the adjusted compensation bill would be and with this thought in mind I have been casting about for some plan the cost of which could be accurately determined in advance, and be so low in the aggregate annual outlay that it could be met from current receipts and at the same time permit of a substantial reduction in federal taxes, while offering to the veterans something equally as good if not very much better than the provisions of the adjusted compensation bill."

Mr. Bacharach. "To meet these conditions I will submit to the committee a straight-out life insurance plan."

Endowment Policy Favored.
This insurance would be in the form of an endowment policy payable at the age of 65 years to every enlisted man or woman who served 100 days or more, in every respect similar to the converted endowment insurance now issued by the veterans' bureau and the policies of the old life insurance companies. It would not apply to any one in the commissioned ranks.

"The estimated cost for the first year, which, of course, would be the highest, would be from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000, with a very substantial decrease each year to maturity."

The house ways and means committee will hold hearings on bonus legislation tomorrow, Tuesday, and Wednesday.

Nation Wide Ownership

NATION WIDE in the scope of its service, the Bell System is nation wide also in the distribution of its securities.

In street car, at church, at theatre, at grocery store counter you rub elbows with its owners.

They differ as widely in occupation and in wealth as do the more than 15,000,000 subscribers served by the system. But as Bell subscribers are united by a common means of inter-communication, so Bell owners are united by a common characteristic—thrift.

Other forms of thrift have very properly attracted the savings of thousands of Americans, but none of them more truly illustrates an investment democracy and none more directly serves the public.

Three hundred thousand persons have made common property of their savings in order to maintain this great national public utility.

Their dollars serve them and serve the nation.

The Fourth Norwood

By ROBERT E. PINKERTON.

For three generations for land has known a Norwood. Tom Norwood's grandfather, Peter Norwood, accompanied Macdonald on his remarkable expedition to the Arctic sea. His son, Frederick (Tom's father), was born and raised in the Arctic. Tom and his father became successful fur traders when Canada became a free trade ground. Aaron Cross, a rival trader, settled in Tom's territory when Tom's son, Rod, is six. Cross is known to the district as The Spider because in an accident a number of years before he had lost both his legs. In the struggle Tom is victorious and The Spider disappears. When Rod is fourteen, The Spider reappears, and the battle between the two traders is renewed.

Tom sends Rod to school in New York and his daughter Beth to school at Toronto. After six years Rod tells his father he would like to continue to live in New York and sends himself to a career as a writer. Tom is bitterly disappointed, so he has just bought a post for his son. The following spring Rod, in New York, receives word of his father's sudden death. He meets Beth at Toronto and they return to Lake Deception. Rod learns that his father's business is nearly bankrupt. Beth goes back to school and Rod decides to work for his father. A half-breed employee of the Norwood post tells Rod his father's death was not accidental, and intimates Cross knows how it happened.

Beth comes back to Lake Deception unexpectedly. On the train she meets Professor Ransome and his daughter Marian. The professor has come into the bush to study Pagan Indian. Rod meets Beth and the Ransomes at Heathsville and the professor tells him he has made arrangements to stay at Cross's home at Lake Deception. Rod is greatly attracted to Marian. The Ransomes leave Heathsville for Lake Deception with the Norwoods and their brigade. On the trip into the bush Rod and Marian realize they have fallen in love.

Beth's brigade reaches Lake Deception. Cross comes back, bringing a missionary for the bush with him. Rod discovers the missionary is an actor in disguise, and forces him to leave Lake Deception. Marian feels Rod's attitude toward Cross is unkind, and her mother is kind enough to a cold antagonism. Cross tricks the Ransomes into taking a trip into the bush where they are abandoned by his canoe men. Rod goes in search of them, and finds them marooned on an island.

INSTALLMENT LV. THE HALF-BREED MAKES CONFESSION.

Rod's eyes never shifted from Bapinini's. His grasp of Marian's wrists did not slacken. The odor of scorching muskoxhide grew more acrid. There had been a despairing, agonized plea in Marian's voice, but he remained unconvinced of it.

"Is there anything you want to say?" he repeated in the same low tone. Bapinini did not speak. His horribly scarred face gave no sign.

"Jim is on the island," Rod told him. "Jim has talked."

Bapinini winced then, and his eyes widened. Rod arose and went back to the fire, where he again thrust the trying pan into the coals. He dragged Marian with him, but when he started back she resisted.

"Please," she begged. "Don't kill everything."

As before, he ignored her and drew her with him to the half-breed's side, where he knelt on the ground.

"Jim says you set the deadfall," he began abruptly.

Chicago Hears Fine Music of Divers Kinds

Mme. Schumann-Heink Is Still a Great Artist.

By EDWARD MOORE.

A great artist in this era of stage managed personality in singing, holding over from the era of great singing with personality in it, appeared at Orchestra Hall yesterday-afternoon. She is Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, a veteran of the operatic and lyric stages, and today a better singer with a finer voice than the vast majority of her competitors.

Like a few other of the oldsters whose vocal style was founded upon solid rock, Mme. Schumann-Heink is a bit breath taking, and this is not for what she has accomplished during a long and honored career, but for what she can do now. She can show them all a few things in beauty and power of voice and in the way to handle it. No one has ever been able to approach her in the dignity with which she sings the Wagnerian Erda, and Brangäne comes, not in the nobility of Schubert's "Die Allmacht." And she gets better as her program progresses.

As Mme. Schumann-Heink is to the tone and expression of the contralto voice, so is Fritz Kreisler to the tone and expression of the violin. The Auditorium was reached in time to hear him play a group of national dances, three from the Slavonic pen of Dvorak, Percy Grainger's Irish "Molly on the Shore," an old-time Viennese waltz by Krakauer, and a Hungarian Fantasy by Hubay.

Those who heard Mr. Kreisler play the Krakauer number—his own arrangement—once and then twice, heard a perfect waltz and a perfect presentation of a waltz. Throughout the group, in fact, they heard some lovely melodies upon which was imposed exquisite dance rhythms. Some violinists can sing with their violins; Mr. Kreisler can also dance with his, and it is a bigger and finer art than most people suppose.

Frederic Lamond, pianist, who visited Chicago some twenty-one years ago and has stayed away ever since, returned to the Studebaker for a recital. He is an interesting and instructive pianist of the old school, with a fine tone, technique that moves easily under his fingers, authoritative style, dignified manner, and program strictly confined to the classics. It was fine.

"Don't forget the truth," Rod threatened. "I can tell when you lie. This is Jim's story, and I know it."

"Listen, now," and for the first time Rod seemed aware of Marian's presence. "I wish your father were well enough to hear this, too. But it won't matter in the end. Go ahead, Bapinini."

"Last winter me and you and the Spider went to the New Year time and me and you and the Spider never tell me why. He never say anything. One month, two month, pretty near three month, go by. Me and you, no do anything. Then one day Jim say, 'Get your dog team,' and we go away. West one day, then north. We stop and make camp."

"That night, it begin to snow. In the morning Jim go away alone. He take ax and he tell me to wait. Noon he come back. Me think then we go but stay there all time it snow. Three days. Then another day. Next morning after that Jim go away again. Pretty soon he come back and we go west. Stop and buy some fur from two hunters and—"

"Well," Rod commanded sharply. "Only the frying pan will make you tell the truth. What was Jim doing?"

"He no say," was the stubborn response.

"Tell it!" Rod exclaimed savagely.

"When he come back that last time he grin and he say, 'I guess that you Norwood never buy any more fur.'"

Rod's fingers contracted about Marian's wrists but she was unaware of the pain. She glanced at his face, saw it was contorted by murderous fury, and for the first time she began to understand why. Bapinini pressed back against the tree as if to escape what he saw in the white man's eyes.

"You grinning fool!" Rod burst forth at last. "I'll use the pan if you tell another lie."

"Jim he say that," was the terrified protest.

"Yes, but you know what he was doing. You knew before you left Lake Deception."

"How about the time when he came down to the Indian camp this summer?"

CLOSEUPS

"I am beginning to feel as if I were living in 1492," Lillian Glush writes from Florence, Italy, where, under the direction of Henry King, she is making "Romola" for Inspiration Pictures. "I have been so haunting the libraries, book stores, art galleries, and antique shops of Florence that I have fairly steeped myself in the manners and customs of the fifteenth century."

May McAvoy, who plays opposite Richard Barthelmess in "The Enchanted Cottage," is to be featured in two other pictures soon. One is called "Tarnish." The other is as yet nameless.

playing, without pose, and with traditions and personality.

Even those who know and admired the crystal clear, flexible voice of Marie Sidenius Zenti felt a glow of congratulatory surprise at the improvement shown in the singing of this admirable Chicago artist since her last appearance. Her recital took place at the Playhouse. The improvement was partly in certainty of manner and partly in English enunciation, which, in her last group of songs, was uncommonly good. Mrs. Zenti has a beautiful voice that hits the note squarely in the center. She is also a singer with intelligence and imagination. Edgar Nelson played first class accompaniments.

Katharine Foss, mezzo-soprano, also appeared in recital at the Blackstone hotel ballroom. Gifted with a voice of much warmth and wide range, which, however, is not so handled as to project all its possibilities, she sang in an intelligently dramatic manner and to the great liking of her audience.

Good morning!
Perhaps you saw the play and perhaps you didn't. Anyhow, you know that there comes a time to these spinless lilies in the human field when the little round hand called a wedding ring means the world when they haven't got it.

Enough of the plot has been hinted at in the first paragraph. To tell the story in detail would be to rob the first bloom from the picture—and for me to do any such thing as that.

It has color, pretty women, the sort of men such pretty women know, good direction, the right kind of background, and one of the dearest young stars you've ever seen on the screen—Dorothy Brock.

Enough of the plot has been hinted at in the first paragraph. To tell the story in detail would be to rob the first bloom from the picture—and for me to do any such thing as that.

One little scene—lilies and a collared man—will probably remember for a long, long time. Maybe not, though—for long time moves fast.

You will be greatly taken if I'm not mistaken with the work of Miss Griffith, Conway Tearle, and Myrtle Steadman. All of the acting you will admit is good.

See you tomorrow!

The Inquiring Reporter Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question asked for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question: Adele Keating, 2943 Pine avenue, Oakley, Cal., was awarded $5.

The Question.
Should housekeeping be considered a profession?

Where Asked.
Michigan avenue at Ohio street.

The Answers.
Henry F. Dundee, Winnipeg, Canada, clerk—I would call it a profession and a worthy one. There are few girls these days who know how to keep house. The majority of them are thinking of dancing instead of housekeeping. It is not expected that they should be slaves.

Miss Dorothy Burr, 215 East Superior street, student—I think so, but I don't know. It is wonderful to know how to do the things, but it would be nice to have a maid do it. Anyhow, the kitchenette apartments now always take the place of the larger homes and there isn't so much to do.

H. A. Price, 189 East Grand avenue, carpenter—Why, sure. It is. Why shouldn't it be? If any one thinks they could take care of our five children and not be an expert in everything connected with the house, they are fooling themselves, and would lose their job.

Miss Charlotte Cullinan, 11285 Vernon avenue, typist—Well, whatever it is, you have to learn to do it, because you have to use it the rest of your life. Even if you married into wealth you would have to dress the maida. If it isn't a profession, it ought to be.

R. F. Yard, 701 Hearst building, salesman—No, not a profession. It is a necessity, and every woman should know how to do it. Professional occupations are limited to the few; housekeeping is necessary for all women, if family life is to be maintained.

Bundesen Tells of City's Work to Keep
"Specs" Off Its Nose

If America is to avoid becoming a spectacle nation, with every man, woman and child wearing glasses within 100 years, as recently forecast by the eminent English physician visiting this country, eyes must be given greater care.

So, at any rate, Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, Chicago health commissioner, warns in a bulletin issued last night. After indicating that free dispensaries and clinics make it needless for even the very poor to neglect eye defects, the health bulletin reads:

"From the foregoing it can be seen that no child in Chicago need suffer the consequences of defective vision. Every encouragement is given to those who require correction."

"The cooperation of all citizens properly to carry out the work is needed in order that by conserving what we have we may forestall the gloomy prophesy made by an English scientist recently visiting our country, who stated that within 100 years every man, woman, and child in the United States will be wearing glasses."

"In support of his statement, the learned doctor declared that the American obsession for wealth and glory, and the fact that as a people we are traveling the pace that kills, had prompted his prediction."

Of 158,828 Chicago school children examined last year, 29,390 had defective vision, according to Dr. Bundesen.

Half of a little more of the play is good melodrama in kind, and that would be enough, as the kind goes, if the pace of the piece were kept up in the final act. Mr. Marcin's plan is in a second prison scene is modest and tortuous, and lets down the excitement and the tension that have the audience on its toes at the second act curtain. That is the principal trouble with "Silence." There are other troubles, easily remediable, the use of a spurious priest in a scene of sacramental confession, for one.

The actors do their part by the play in the way they play the role. The music is performed, and Mr. Marcin takes a special success out of the high moments of the second act.

BY FREDERICK DONAGHEY.
Mollie Burke and her friends were having a good time in her Manhattan residence; there was beer from her tavern, and there were the songs of the Nineties and rising spirits for it was Mollie's wedding-day—her third—and she was happy in the prospect of being Jim Warren's wife. Then a policeman carried in Norma Drake, in the pants of partition, and Mollie learned that Jim was even worse than she had believed, although she knew he needed a great deal of money to keep out of jail, and had promised to give it to him after the ceremony. When her favorite alderman arrived for the marriage, he was called aside to make Norma Drake Mrs. Phil Power, that the child might have a name. Phil was an aspiring fellow who loved Norma vainly, and did what he believed to be the right thing in squaring her on her deadbeat. . . .

This was an exciting and colorful bit of New-York town life in the device of a cut-back in Mr. Marcin's new play, which had opened in a Western prison, where Jim Warren, convicted of murdering an associate of evil ways, was stubbornly refusing all offers of mercy if he would tell the facts.

The facts are that Powers, going West after Norma's death, has risen high in the esteem of men, become a power in politics and journalism, and raised Norma's child as his own. Jim, a cheap cheat of the fair and carnival, comes to tell of letters and things worth a big price in blackmail; and out of the meeting of the rivals of twenty years ago the daughter learns the truth: that the shabby, fustie gambler who took money from her at the fair is her own father.

The message is not, Jim, however, but Silvers, who knows all that went on back in Mollie Burke's, and thinks the letters of high value to Powers. He is mean when he talks, and dirty; and as he threatens and swears he is killed in Powers' home by Jim's daughter, and Jim, wishing to atone as far as he may, takes the pistol, and thinks of hanging-priests and smoke-smells, and burns the letters out of the pocket of the dead blackmailier, and is ready when the police come. And that is why he doesn't talk, although the audience may be heard as they hammer the saws together.

Half of a little more of the play is good melodrama in kind, and that would be enough, as the kind goes, if the pace of the piece were kept up in the final act. Mr. Marcin's plan is in a second prison scene is modest and tortuous, and lets down the excitement and the tension that have the audience on its toes at the second act curtain. That is the principal trouble with "Silence." There are other troubles, easily remediable, the use of a spurious priest in a scene of sacramental confession, for one.

The actors do their part by the play in the way they play the role. The music is performed, and Mr. Marcin takes a special success out of the high moments of the second act.

The Tribune introduces a new feature today entitled: SENTENCE SERMONS—By the REV. ROY L. SMITH.

It Takes No Extra Time—

- To say "Thank You."
- To think kindly of your associates.
- To be orderly and neat.
- To hold your tongue.
- To smile when you meet your friends.
- To take orders cheerfully.
- To thank God for each day's blessing.

CONSIDERATION OF WHEAT IS HUGE; CORN STOCK BIG

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Analysts of private reports regarding farm reserves of wheat, country elevator, and mill stocks, and the amounts in the available supply, indicate the trade's belief that the United States was close to a domestic basis was approximately correct.

This situation, combined with the certainty that the import duty on wheat and its products will be increased within a few weeks and that the flow of Canadian grain into this country will be checked, may mean a few lower prices in the May delivery, as many close observers of the market see it.

Numerous complaints of damage to winter wheat are being received from the west winter wheat states and the Mississippi, a territory where the yield per acre is usually the heaviest. These reports, however, are not being given the weight they have been in the past, for the considerable buying of deferred delivery by operators who had the information. Nat Murray lowers the condition six points from December to 82.

Speculators Not Aggressive.

With the certainty that the spring wheat acreage will be reduced to some extent, combined with the fact that winter wheat area that was seeded in 1923, the prospects of a record crop in the United States are not overly bright. Were prices to rise to 15c lower than the present and more in line with the world level, many of the bulls would probably have more confidence in the situation.

For the time being there is a tendency to ignore the fact that Canada has a large exportable surplus that must be sold within the next few months, and that the time is rapidly approaching when the United States should start to make sales of new crop grain for deferred shipment. This is almost impossible under prevailing conditions, owing to the high price of the July and September contracts.

Many traders feel that wheat values are due to start upward in the immediate future, while others look for a break, and there are a few who believe to be found, as well as $1.29 bulls.

May wheat closed Saturday at $1.14, up 1/2¢ for the week. July was $1.11, up 1/2¢, and September $1.11, up 1/2¢, as at the previous week. The range of prices follows:

With the certain that the spring wheat acreage will be reduced to some extent, prospects will be much more favorable than those which were anticipated when it was seeded in 1922, the probability of a record crop in the United States is not overly bright.	W. Labadie, clear, S. W. 30 30 30 Lab
